The aim of this study was to examine the role of calcium ions in regulation of the cGMP-phosphodiesterase of rabbit retinal outer segment membrane. The enzyme was activated by the addition of calcium ions (10(-6) to 10(-4) M) in a concentration-dependent manner. Activation of the enzyme was not dependent on the membrane potential. It is suggested that calcium ions regulate the catalytic activity of the enzyme at the postreceptor level.Is there a role for pulmonary rehabilitation in patients with chronic thromboembolic pulmonary hypertension? In the long term, approximately 50% of patients with chronic thromboembolic pulmonary hypertension (CTEPH) will develop severe pulmonary hypertension (PH). Despite this, there are currently no therapies specifically directed at the treatment of PH in these patients. Pulmonary rehabilitation, which is recommended for patients with PH, may be of benefit to patients with CTEPH; however, the management of these patients has only recently been investigated. The aim of this review was to assess the role of pulmonary rehabilitation in the treatment of CTEPH. The Cochrane Central Register of Controlled Trials (CENTRAL), MEDLINE, EMBASE and CINAHL were searched for relevant randomised controlled trials. Cross references were also searched. We also asked experts in the field and contacted pharmaceutical companies that manufacture PH medications. Hand searching was also performed. The search was limited to randomised controlled trials published in the English language and performed in humans. We excluded unpublished studies and studies where the outcomes of interest were not reported. Eight randomised controlled trials were identified. Three studies investigated the effects of a pulmonary rehabilitation programme
