When the driver for your Huawei device does not install properly due to a hardware conflict, you may encounter issues. In this article, we will provide you with a helpful solution to fix this issue. When you sign into your MyVerify account, we collect necessary information such as geolocation and hardware model. Once we have this information, we can check your current status, order a replacement, and be notified when the device has been repaired. You're the best! Thanks for the help. I had 2 different causes for the problem. First, I had an incompatible driver on a SD card installed. Removed it and the problem disappeared. Second, I had the "choose not to connect" set back to On. Changed it back to Off and the problem no longer persists. Sprint has a separate support forum for your device. It can be found here: If you are working on the CDMA network, you can use this guide from our CDMA Developer Forums. You can find it here: Thanks for your interest in using MyVerify. I'm glad that it made your life easier! You had an interesting situation. The user profile on the SIM card had remained from a previous device. This profile had caused the driver to fail. This is not something that we can fix. However, you did find the solution. I'm glad that it worked for you. I think your network provider has some other data that they are collecting about you. I would contact them to make sure that they are sending you the information that they are expected to send you. Generally, I would not worry about this issue. However, it is something that you need to find out. You may have gotten a report from your network that says you are a SIM duplicate. This may be because your SIM card was already added to another account. You may have gotten a report from your network that says you are a SIM duplicate. This may be because your SIM card was already added to another account. Hi, Thanks for the solution. I did not have any SIM card. I was just using a prepaid number (It is no longer active) to use your product. I would appreciate any information that you may have about

Error Code in nexus 7: It tells me the error message, but I dont know what I should do.. Im actually really confused.. I downloaded the 7.1 of arabtec wifi and the 7.1 of nexus system and I did synn link between them and I tried to restore them... I'm still getting the same errors.. I actually think this is not the correct method.. I have to wait until the guys help me.. Thank you very much A:Error code in nexus 7 Was it a loss of signal after you synced or did the nexus just say something went wrong? If you have network issues, try clearing your dns cache in your browsers.When you are finished for the day, force shut down the modem and unplug it from the network. Then open your network manually, only using the host IP address. In Chrome, force-quit and restart the browser. Do the same in Safari. You need to get a clear mind for this. When you start up the modem, it should connect first time. Most people don't have this issue. Try using the Wifi Tether app. I am using an AT&T USB modems -E1710 at the moment. First did you do the process of doing the software download. Now do you do the firmware update. Since we have to work with physical device, we have to know some of the files before we do the firmware update. You can't start doing the firmware update, first you have to download the zip file.Please confirm the location of zip file on the modem. Step 1: Download the firmware update zip file. Step 2: Extract it. Step 3: Open the folder, you will find some files. Step 4: Now open the file named "README" and follow the instructions given in there. Step 5: Lastly, if the connection manager is up-to-date (the file name is "ConnectionManager") on the phone itself, you need to carry out the process of the update there. If this is
